TrueCrypt PasswordDialog Description:

A password dialog for the file encryption program TrueCrypt. The configuration is saved to the Windows Registry and TrueCrypt will be started using your system's default settings.. The application requests, as well as the handler of the application, to be called in the bottom-most window, i.e., the output window. To avoid situations in which a current point of focus for the application may be outside the input window, the window manager will in some cases prevent the application from being called when it gains focus. Moreover, if the entire application window is obscured by another window, the window manager may prevent the application from gaining focus. Applications are provided with a hint that indicates the portion of the application window that should have focus when they are called. The hint includes a pointer to the window or region of the window that should be brought to the foreground. A window may have a focused window list and the focus of a window can be changed using the focus-in, focus-out, and focus-on operations described above. The window manager performs a decision of whether to call a particular application. If the application is not currently active in the window system, then the window manager preferably provides the application
